Writer shows this icon as background-color button if the currently selected background is default:

Calc shows this button if the selected cell(s) has default background:

But this one does not differ from white background-color!
You should use the correct button in case of default background, like writer does.

(Since you use this correct button for default font-color, like writer does, I see the problem described above as bug.)